General News

Spotlight on Ryan Moseley

Many people know Ryan Moseley, the part-time ResNet technician student manager and full-time graduate student in Information Technology. However, not many people know that when he is not busy studying for his graduate courses or managing schedules or helping to fix laptops, he is busy preparing to qualify for the 2008 Summer Olympics with the Bahamian National Soccer team.

Moseley grew up in Nassau, Bahamas and attended grade school and high school there before coming to La Salle. At the age of six he began to play soccer for club teams and continued to play throughout his high school years at Queens College. At La Salle, he was a striker on the team for four years and also managed to run track for the Explorers from sophomore year on. He actually made the Academic All-American team during his last season of track and kept his spot on both varsity teams until he completed his NCAA eligibility for both sports.

While Ryan enjoys running, his first love is soccer. As he explains, "soccer is more team-oriented, so if you're having a bad day, there's always someone there to cover for you, but with track, if you're having a bad day, well—you're just having a bad day."

Because of his experience and love of soccer, he decided to try out for the 2008 Olympics Soccer team in his native country this past summer.

Last month he learned he was successful in qualifying for the second round and now waits to hear from the officials this month to see if he will be invited to join the team for the next round. Ryan explains that only 18 of the 30 will be accepted—and if he is one, he will be brought home to practice and prepare as a team member and compete in the second round.

Right now Moseley is keeping in shape by working out about 1 ½ hours a day. He says that if he makes the team and gets to compete in Beijing, it will be an amazing thing for him. "Ever since I can remember, every four years, I watched the Olympics on television—and getting to go the 2008 games would be well—everything."

Moseley, however, is not counting on just soccer to get him to Beijing next summer. Next June, he plans to try out for the Bahamian track team. The events are held at different times, he explains, so he decided to train for both.

NOTE: Yesterday, October 4, Ryan Moseley learned that he did qualify for the second round and will be flying to Port au Prince, Haiti on Sunday, October 7, where he will join the Bahamian National Soccer Team to play against Haiti and Jamaica. CONGRATULATIONS RYAN!

EXPLORER ALERT

is not enough.

Nearly 1,000 members of the La Salle University community have signed up for Explorer Alert, the University's Emergency Text Message system introduced in August.

However, with a student enrollment exceeding 6,000 and with more than 1,200 employees, 1,000 is not enough.

Our goal is to be able to quickly inform the entire La Salle community in case of an incident like the one at Virginia Tech last spring, thereby improving campus-wide safety.

Explorer Alert will also be used to notify the University community in the event that a weather emergency, or another type of emergency, requires classes to be cancelled.

Signing up can be done in three easy steps:

1. Log on to the mylasalle Web portal, click on the Brother LUWIS icon, and select the "Personal Information" option.
2. On the next screen, choose "Emergency Text Message Alert System" from the menu.
3. Fill in the requested information and click the "Submit" button. You should receive a test message as confirmation of your enrollment in Explorer Alert almost immediately.

If you have any questions or experience any problems with registering your number, call the Help Desk at x1860.

Dr. Neubauer and Dr. Cicala distributed relevant excerpts from the Student Guide to Resources, Rights, and Responsibilities (pp. 36-39, 48, and 75-79), as well as copies of our Sexual Harassment and Sexual Misconduct pamphlets, all of which also are available in the "Division Publications" section of the DSA area of the web site (www.lasalle.edu/studentaffairs). Dr. Neubauer also described the ways in which the pamphlets have been distributed and/or made available to students and others over the past few years. Members were asked to review the materials in detail for a general discussion at our next meeting.
